  - Excerpted in Fast Magazine, “Self Help – And Self Blame – Won’t Fix the Tech Addiction Problem,” March 28, 2023
  - Featured in the Boston Globe, in Yvonne Abraham, “Screen Addiction? Don’t Feel Bad, Feel Angry,” March 25, 2023
  - Featured in Bloomberg Business Week Podcast, with Doug Kriz and Jess Menton, in What to Do About Society’s Technology Problem, March 30, 2023
  - Featured in Tech Policy, in Justin Hendrix, “Gaia Bernstein on Gaining Control over Addictive Technologies,” April 2nd, 2023
  - Featured in In Conversation with Andrew Keen on Keen on, Gaia Bernstein on How to Gain Control over Addictive Technologies, April 3, 2023.
  - “Bernstein skewers the tech industry... in her damning debut... This trenchant clarion call rings loud and clear.” – Publisher’s Weekly
  - “Mixing expertise and passion [Unwired] sets an agenda to rein in the tech behemoths that have run rampant for years.” – Kirkus Reviews

- "Unwired is neither a screen-junkie confessional nor a recovery handbook. Bernstein regards framing the issue as ultimately one of self-control as part of the problem.... Bernstein is shrewd about the political maneuvers and public relations options available to industries challenged for doing harm to the general welfare." – Inside Higher Education
- "Unwired is neither a screen-junkie confessional nor a recovery handbook. Bernstein regards framing the issue as ultimately one of self-control as part of the problem.... Bernstein is shrewd about the political maneuvers and public relations options available to industries challenged for doing harm to the general welfare." – Inside Higher Education
- Unwired is not, and does not aspire to be, a comprehensive account of the screen-addiction phenomenon. It exists to be used: an agenda for social change through legal action. It is a knife, not a brush. But it'll be of much more than academic value to those of us whose parenting years were overshadowed by feelings of guilt, frustration and anxiety, as we fought our hopeless battles, and lost our children to TikTok and Fortnite." – The New Statesman
- Unwired is a compelling, accessible, and vital intervention into the overuse of technology. Instead of offering overly simplistic self-help strategies that are doomed to fail, Professor Bernstein rightly targets the manipulative design of technologies and the need for us to work together to hold the tech industry accountable. This book vividly blends personal stories with the latest research and lessons from history to paint a clear picture of our struggle with screens and what it's going to take to improve things. Everyone should read this book." Woodrow Hartzog, Professor of Law at Boston University and author of 'Privacy's Blueprint: The Battle to Control the Design of New Technologies'
- "In this important and powerful book, Gaia Bernstein shows us how to reclaim our power and our humanity from the Big Tech cartel that have intentionally addicted us to their devices and platforms." Nicholas Kardaras, PhD, Author of 'Glow Kids and Digital Madness'
- "Gaia Bernstein's Unwired offers a compelling roadmap for tackling one of our most pressing problems: the irresistible pull of technology. Over the course of our lives, we and our children will spend between fifteen and twenty years glued to our screens. As Bernstein shows, though, there are regulatory remedies at hand to help us retain our time and our wellbeing." Adam Alter, Professor of Marketing and Psychology, NYU Stern School of Business, author of 'Irresistible and Drunk Tank Pink.'
- Inviting and intelligent, Gaia Bernstein's extraordinary book masterfully combines honest personal reflections about her experiences with the creep of digital tech together with a sobering academic account of our collective public struggles to deal with technologies designed to addict, manipulate, and even control our behavior. Throughout, Bernstein maintains a can-do attitude that inspires change.”

Brett Frischmann, The Charles Widger Endowed University Professor in Law, Business and Economics, Villanova University School of Law.

- “Unwired is a powerful rejoinder to voices that would seek to minimize the threat technological manipulation poses to human freedom. But Gaia Bernstein goes beyond a mere accounting of the harms and proposes systemic changes that can help us take back control. Comprehensive in its scope and clear-eyed in its analysis, Unwired is an indispensable guide to the landscape of digital technology reform. Anyone who cares about the future of technology should read this book.”
James Williams, author of ‘Stand Out of Our Light.’”
